DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 1 recites the limitation "the SMI signal generating module" in line 13. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-2, 4-7, 9-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Goh et al, US. Pat. No. 6,373,841.
5. Claims 1, 6, Goh teaches a remote reboot method for use on a network system linked to at least one computer platform [system 10 of Fig. 1] that is equipped with a special type of network chip and a special type of I/O control chip, for providing a remote reboot function to the computer platform [Fig. 3]; the remote reboot method comprising:

issuing a PME packet via the network system to the network chip on the computer platform [the network manager 30 generates a packet to manage computer 18 (to power down or reboot, ..)];

in response to the PME packet, activating the network chip to issue a PME signal to the I/O control chip [the media access controller 42 receives the packet and directs it to the embedded processor 48];

in response to the PME signal, activating the I/O control chip to generate an SMI signal; and judging whether the SMI signal generated by the SMI signal generating module is activated by PME signal [if it is determined that the problem is a system crash]; if yes, issuing a boot enable signal to the computer platform to cause the computer platform to undergo a reboot procedure [the system is rebooted, see Fig. 8 and related discussions].

6. Claims 2, 7, Goh teaches the network chip is an Ethernet-compliant network chip [col. 3, lines 16-18].

7. Claims 4, 9, Goh teaches the network system is Internet [col. 3, lines 16-18].

8. Claims 5, 10, Goh teaches the network system is a LAN system [col. 3, lines 16-18].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

9. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

10. Claims 3, 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goh et al, US. Pat. No. 6,373,841.

11. Claims 3, 8, Goh fails to teach the I/O control chip is a Super I/O chip.

Official Notice is taken that both the concept and the advantages of Super I/O chip is old and well known in the art.

Art Unit: 2116

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the teaching of Goh to include a Super I/O chip, because it integrates the functions of several highly integrated chips into a single chip that provides all the major system I/O functions of a standard PC.
